Report of Health Officer

I herewith submit my report as Health Officer of the Town of Epping for the year ending February 15, 1917. At the beginning of the school year, I visited all the schools to look over the sanitary arrangements and to ascertain if all had complied with the law relating to vaccination. I found but few that had not been, and ordered them to be vaccinated at once and return their card to their teacher. The town has been fortunate the last year as regards contagious diseases. My attention was called to a skin disease that was prevailing among the children of the lower grades. I ordered Dr. Mitchell to make an examination and at his request all children infected were sent home and placed in his charge to return to school when so ordered by him. There have been but few local complaints, all of which have been investigated. I now have a complaint from the Department of Public Instruction, through the state Board of Health, condemning Watson Academy and the Parochial School. Chapter 35 of the laws of 1915 make it compulsory that all buildings occupied for school purposes must be safe and sanitary. If not so they must be made to comply with the law or they will be condemned and forbidden for further use. It is therefore necessary that we raise money enough to repair and make the sanitary arrangements at Watson Academy what they should be. The conditions at the Parochial School are very bad, and it will be necessary for them to raise considerable money to meet the requirements, and if this is not done they will not be allowed to open their school after June of this year. I respectfully ask the co-operation of all the citizens in the enforcement of our health laws, in making our school buildings what they should be, and the protecting of our children, and the whole town in general.

Respectfully,

GEORGE A. GILMORE, Health Officer.

Report of the Superintendent of Schools

To the School Board of Epping, N. H.:

I have the honor to submit herewith my first annual report in the series of District Superintendents' reports.

Elected in the spring for the year beginning August 1, 1916, I assumed my duties in July, and during the summer spent considerable time in the search for teachers to fill the numerous vacancies existing in the four towns. As many resignations occurred, it was often necessary to fill the same position several times before a permanent occupant was found.

The fall term opened with the same staff of teachers in charge except that Miss Flora M. Tuck, who had given long and faithful service to the schools and to the community, was succeeded by Miss Winifred K. Woodman, of West Medway, Mass., who had come well recommended after two years work at Jackson College, and a year's experience in a Maine High School. Later in the term Miss Hazel Weare resigned to accept a position at Ipswich, Mass. Miss Ruth Perkins, a graduate of Salem, Mass., Normal School, 1915, with a brief experience in schools of Massachusetts, was her successor, but also resigned before the Thanksgiving recess. Miss Vera Simonds, a graduate of Bridgewater, Mass., Normal School, 1915, with over one year's experience, then took up the duties of the position.

By frequent inspection and by careful observation I have sought to discover the exact condition of the schools, their present efficiency, their most immediate needs, the textbooks available for use, the qualities shown by the members of the teaching staff, the amount of retardation, the causes for waste and loss of time, of the lack of adjustment of the individual pupil to his school work and grade, the attendance of pupils and the reasons for absence, the discipline, the scholarship and the methods employed to get results, and the prevailing tone and spirit of the classrooms.

It has been my endeavor to build upon the foundation laid by my predecessors, to constructively develop the resources available rather than to make any radical change.

Faulty attendance and a pronounced lack of punctuality have been foremost among the causes of loss and waste. These defects plainly hinder the progress of children in their studies; they are without doubt the greatest causes of retardation; they reduce the amount of state aid. In the coming year more effective steps should be taken to secure more regularity and promptness in attendance. The burden of responsibility rests not upon the child; very little upon the teacher, the truant officer or the other school officials, but primarily and heavily upon the parent.

Every five years a general programme of studies has been issued by the State Department of Education. The most recent edition was placed in the hands of the teachers last spring. While not mandatory upon any School Board, its adoption and use makes for the saving of time, energy and efficiency in the conduct of the schools. This document is made the basis of instruction in the training of both state normal schools. It undoubtedly represents as much of the best in modern education as can be properly used in the school systems of this state.

The outline of work has been changed so as to make possible the organization of schools on a basis of six grades of elementary work and six grades of secondary work. By adoption of this programme any school board can secure a standard of requirement that will last at least five years. Your Superintendent has striven to shape the schedules of the classrooms in such fashion as to most speedily bring their work into harmony with the standards of this new programme.

In the earlier grades attractive supplementary readers supplied as fast as the children gather facility and power go far to ensure good reading. An effort has been made to supply this imperative need. Gradually the rooms can be equipped with such text and reference books as will best meet the requirements of the courses of study. By the end of the year we should be in a fairly satisfactory condition.

The work in the "Three R's" is being gradually tested out and the present efficiency measured by the use of standardized tests. The Superintendent and teachers have recently completed the statistics of the first reading test. The test prepared by H. A. Brown, State Bureau of Research, General Education Board of the Rockefeller Foundation, was employed. The results of the test will be posted in the several classrooms. By the use of this and similar devices the Superintendent and teachers can diagnose the needs of the class or the individual pupil.

Practical mental work in arithmetic and drill in fundamentals have been emphasized with due attention to speed and accuracy. Indolent habits of mind are often the result of the excessive use of pencil and paper so common in many schools. Hygiene, the care of the health, sanitation, ventilation, the formation of correct habits in early life, the effects of bacteria are presented in practical forms to the pupils in the grades. Fire drills have been added. To teach patriotism and to inculcate a deep reverence for the flag, patriotic songs and the flag salute are parts of the daily exercises in the elementary schools.

The new programme includes in its courses much that is related to real life, courses in sewing, cooking, wood working and manual training, nature study and agriculture; already some work is being done in the last mentioned; the others can be taken up as soon as equipment and proper facilities are provided; Epping is especially well suited for such work because of the room available in its two buildings and the spacious grounds surrounding them. The education of the hand and eye is as necessary as that of the intellect; the "three H's" are as important as the "three R's". By the training of heart and of hand we have an efficient, happy, prosperous individual and when the education of mind (the head) accompanies this training there is as a result a competent, ever thinking, growing, resourceful, broad-minded, generous, well-rounded man or woman. It is but a return to some of the features that distinguished the education of the boys and girls in the homes of our forefathers, but the school must now do what the home did in the days of long ago, for the home can no longer give that training. Very few towns of the state are without these courses in their schools. Epping High is one of eighteen High Schools of this state where practical arts courses are not given. Fifty-nine of the ninety-one High Schools provide courses in the domestic arts, thirty in agriculture, thirty-seven in commerce, eleven in mechanic arts and seventy-three have one or more practical arts curricula. The expense of maintaining most of these is no greater than those which are commonly taken up. To introduce the domestic arts work Epping needs to purchase a good range, a sewing machine, the usual utensils, and the necessary reference books when the secondary work is begun. As for instruction a well equipped graduate of a good school or college where the domestic arts and science is given can be secured to teach both these courses and the other courses of the seventh and eighth years. The domestic arts courses extend through the fifth to the twelfth years of school life, and the weaving, plain hand sewing, machine sewing, embroidery, dress making, plain cooking, canning, preserving of the fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth years are followed by secondary courses, which include drafting and designing of patterns, the fitting and hanging of garments, the study of textile fabrics, of hygiene in its relation to wearing apparel, of line and color adaptations, of the suitability of apparel in its relation to use and income, and the computation of costs, household mechanical appliances, household sanitation, nursing, care of the aged and the sick and of infants, cooking for the sick, dietetics, household design and decoration, household economy.

To introduce the manual arts courses tools are necessary (the benches can be made by the boys themselves) and an instructor is required who can give two hours to the seventh and the eighth grades and one hour to the fifth and the sixth grades. The room in the basement of the new building formerly used for a recitation room is almost ideal as a cooking room. The boys' basement can likewise be utilized for the wood working.

Much thought should be given by Superintendent, Board, and citizens as to the character of work our High School should attempt to do in the next five years. The school has in the past rendered effective service; there is every reason to believe that it has a great mission to perform in the future. Although resources are not large, nevertheless by careful disposition of those available and by gradual improvement of the equipment, by broadening and enriching its courses, and by fitting the curricula to the needs of the community, we can enhance its power and its prestige.

The most important action that can be taken at present, an action upon which all other developments must depend, is the remodeling and the renovating of the High School building. I would respectfully urge that the Board of Trustees grant permission and the district carry out some plan to this end. A new furnace should replace the present defective one; a new floor should be laid in the upper rooms; new lights cut; extra blackboards be placed on the partition wall; curtains supplied; some simple, inexpensive form of ventilation devised; flush closets installed in the basement.

If this is done the way is clear for the transfer of the pupils of the seventh and the eighth grades to this building. They can be seated in the main room on the ground floor or in one of the upper rooms and the other upper room be used as a recitation and sewing room.

Not only will these boys and girls have greater privileges, but this move will relieve the troublesome congestion of the lower grade rooms and the use of the basement room so often with a temperature below what is regarded necessary for comfort can be discontinued.

To act as a preventive of colds and the spread of contagion, I would suggest the frequent use of a good disinfectant in the various rooms.

Looking towards the future we find Epping equipped with many facilities for good work, the pupils splendidly concentrated, the elementary grades in possession of a modern building, properly heated, lighted and ventilated; in an atmosphere conducive to good scholarship, well located, with grounds ample for every purpose and ready for development as a play ground and as a place for school gardening.

The Superintendent enters upon his duties with a pride in what has already been accomplished by the town and with a feeling that the future holds much in store in the way of real achievement.

In conclusion, appreciation of the co-operation of the School Board and the Board of Trustees, the faithful loyalty and the intelligent and diligent efforts of the teachers, the cordial welcome and ready response of parents and citizens is here acknowledged.

Respectfully submitted,

ALBERT T. LANE.
